Sanford J. Boxerman, Sara G. Neill, and Michelle F. Schwerin, shareholders of Capes Sokol, will present at the first annual Summer Tax Summit in St. Louis, Missouri. The CLE-portion of the event is scheduled for August 29th and promises a day of insightful discussions and networking opportunities for legal professionals, CPAs, and enrolled agents, all centered around civil and criminal tax controversy matters.

Boxerman will participate as a panelist in a presentation titled "Navigating IRS Civil & Criminal Enforcement Trends for Cryptocurrency." During this session, the panel will delve into recent regulatory, legislative and judicial developments concerning the taxation of cryptocurrency. The panel will include a high-ranking official from IRS-Criminal Investigations as well as an Assistant United States Attorney, both of whom will provide insights and updates concerning the federal government's efforts in this area.

Neill will moderate a panel titled: "Gaining Insights into Sentencing for Tax/White Collar Cases – A Judicial Perspective." This discussion will feature a panel of esteemed federal district court judges
