

CAPE SOKOL LITIGATOR AUTHORS TRADEMARK ARTICLE FOR THE JOURNAL OF THE MISSOURI BAR

Posted on June 27, 2016 by Capes Sokol

Category: Publications

One of Capes Sokol's litigators was a featured contributor in the May/June 2016 issue of the Journal of the Missouri Bar. The article entitled, "Avoid Becoming a Trademark Bully: The Art of Writing Cease and Desist Letters," appeared in Vol. 72, No. 3 issue of the Journal.

The choice of a lawyer is an important decision and should not be based solely upon advertisements.

Avoid Becoming a Trademark Bully: The Art of Writing Cease & Desist Letters

Cease and desist letters are an essential tool to cost-effectively resolve issues and avoid litigation. However, in an increasingly connected world, they are only an effective tool if used appropriately.

Read the full article "Avoid Becoming a Trademark Bully: The Art of Writing Cease and Desist Letters" on the Missouri Bar website. If you would like to read more articles from this month's issue, copies of Journal are also available online.

The Journal of The Missouri Bar is the official publication of The Missouri Bar. Published six times annually, the Journal carries substantive articles on timely legal issues, as well as regular columns, practice management articles and features covering cutting-edge topics that are trending in the legal profession. To learn more about the Journal of The Missouri Bar, please visit their website.

The choice of a lawyer is an important decision and should not be based solely upon advertisements.