On December 23, 2024, the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit lifted the temporary injunction that had blocked enforcement of the Corporate Transparency Act \(CTA\) and the Reporting Rule implementing the CTA. This significant ruling means that the CTA is once again in effect nationwide.

What This Means for Reporting Companies

For any reporting companies that had delayed filing their CTA reports due to the temporary injunction issued by the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Texas earlier this month, it's crucial to take immediate action to comply with the CTA requirements.

- Existing Reporting Companies: Those in existence prior to January 1, 2024, must file Beneficial Owner Information (BOI) Reports by December 31, 2024.
- New Reporting Companies: Those formed in 2024 have 90 days from their formation date to comply with their CTA requirements.

Ensuring Compliance

The reinstatement of the CTA means that reporting companies must act quickly to ensure compliance and avoid potential penalties. The CTA requires reporting companies to provide detailed information about their beneficial owners to improve transparency and prevent illegal activities such as money laundering and terrorism financing.
