On June 23, 2022, Michelle F. Schwerin will moderate a panel entitled, "Staying Ahead of the Tax Enforcement Curve and the New Emerging Issues Group".

The panel is a part of the 2022 New York University ("NYU") School of Professional Studies Tax Controversy Forum, which features presentations by prominent practitioners and government officials on a broad range of issues regarding tax audits and tax litigation. This year's NYU Tax Controversy Forum focuses on IRS activity to enhance compliance through communication and enforcement.

Staying Ahead of the Tax Enforcement Curve and the New Emerging Issues Group

Presentation Description:

Finance, technology, and law are constantly evolving, and the tax law is no exception. Taxpayers and their advisors are always on the lookout for new opportunities to reduce taxes. This panel will explain how the IRS keeps up with the changing profile of tax avoidance and tax evasion. The panel will also introduce the IRS' new Emerging Issues Group and
